MASTERS IN SOCIAL WORK

RATIONALE

Just like the discipline of Natural Sciences, the Social Sciences too have been compelled to move from pure theoretical accumulation of knowledge towards its application, especially with an aim to minimize human misery and to promote the project of human development by developing appropriate strategies at the grass root level. Social Work is one such discipline that has evolved out of such a realization within the realm of social sciences that caters to the socially marginalized, poor, deprived and the disadvantaged groups through the experts trained for the purpose. Imparting training in Social Work has also been necessitated by the growing need for partnerships between the State, Civil society and the Non- governmental & private actors, in an effort to bring all sections of society under the ambit of development.

The Panjab University thus started Masters of Social Work (MSW) degree programme in July 2007 that combines education, practice, and community service for preparing the postgraduates to work with individuals, families, groups, and communities in a variety of human service settings. The M.S.W. programme intends to instill in its students a commitment to improve social conditions and address social problems. Our students build valuable skill sets to bring out into the world and utilize in the field-whether they decide to couple their training with a background in journalism and report on child advocacy groups, counsel low-income, elderly residents, or head an organization to determine solutions for at-risk youth. Our students are problem solvers.

The Centre for Social Work derives its mission from the University's goal to advance knowledge and learning at the highest level and to use that knowledge for human betterment and societal advancement. This program draws on the profession's body of knowledge, values and skills in seeking to: strengthen practices, programs, and policies that support and enhance the opportunities, resources, and capacities of people to achieve their full potential; prevent and alleviate personal, interpersonal and societal problems; redress conditions that limit human development and quality of life; and, promote human rights, social justice and respect for human diversity.

The faculty and students seek to enhance the well-being of local, national and international communities and to advance the University and the profession through collaboration, consultation, and public service. In nutshell the "mission" is that our students shall also be the job creators and not only the job seekers.

PRIMARY GOAL & OBJECTIVES

Through the teaching of social work knowledge and practice, this programme intends to prepare the students to actualize the concept of social caring, to demonstrate belief in the intrinsic value of all humankind, to serve those in need, and to act with conviction in advancing the principles of social justice and development.

In order to accomplish this goal, the Centre of Social Work is committed to the following objectives:

- To acculturate students to the social work profession including its history, purpose, values, code of ethics, and commitment to social service.
- To provide students with the professional foundations, including broad knowledge and ethical use of skills, needed for competent, beginning level, social work practice within micro or macro systems and with a variety of client populations.
- To help students understand the context of social work practice including agency and organizational dynamics, policy development, and the impact of these on clients and workers.
- To increase awareness of and sensitivity to oppression and oppressed populations.
- To develop students' understanding of discrimination and its impact and to encourage them to make /interventions for equality.
- To promote self-awareness and the enhancement of students' capacity to know themselves and to use self effectively and appropriately within a professional context including: critical thinking, accepting responsibility for continued growth and development, learning to communicate effectively.
- To provide a practice model for working with client systems that uses a process of problem identification, assessment, data collection, goal setting, contracting, intervention, termination and evaluation, and focus on the strengths of clients to solve problems

- To provide students with knowledge and skills necessary to analyze the impact of policies on client groups and to influence resources and resource allocation, public policy, and social service delivery systems within the mission of the profession.
- To provide students with research knowledge and skills so they can be effective consumers of research; can engage in competent research-based practice; and can effectively evaluate their own practice.
- To create and disseminate, through research and knowledge building, social innovations using interdisciplinary problem-solving efforts.

JOB AVENUES

What our students do out in the world after post graduation is just as important as what happens to them during their time in the classroom. We provide the skill set and knowledge to transform interests and passion into satisfying careers.

The course will offer ample choice of employment opportunities for the postgraduates and can fetch them bright career prospects in government and non-government sectors apart from the international and other private organizations working towards social welfare. The curriculum of this course has been developed in the light of emerging social scenario in the wake of globalization and its impact upon the job market in India and abroad.

They can work as project officers, programme coordinators, development consultants, field officers, counselors, instructors, lecturers, social workers in the areas related to children, adolescents, elderly, public health, education, family welfare, advocacy & human rights, development, funding and research etc.

GENERAL INFORMATION

The Master of Social Work (MSW) Programme shall be for two academic years, each consisting of two semesters. In addition there shall be six weeks Block Field Placement Programme after the fourth semester. The programme will consist of multiple modes of training such as classroom lectures, group discussions, workshops and seminars, etc. An important component of training will consist of fieldwork under supervision, and a close interface with the organizations- both government and non-government, working for the welfare of people, especially at the margins of society. Hence the curriculum will cover both the theoretical as well as the practical training of the students, enabling them to work as social workers, counselors, project officers, field officers, evaluators etc. in various government and non-government sectors. They would also be able to work with premiere international organizations and funding agencies as development consultants.

Apart from compulsory courses on Social Work and other developmental and research themes, the course will offer specialized training to students in areas of great contemporary relevance such as Family and Gender issues, Child and Adolescent related issues, Society's Response to Aging, Health and Society, Social Demography, Marginalized groups, Disabled and the State, Urban and Social Planning and so on.

The course will be offered under Semester System, lasting for four semesters. The following three areas of specialization will be offered to the students:

- Family and Social Work.
- Contemporary Issues in Communities
- Population, Health and Development

FIELD WORK / PRACTICUM

Supervised field work/practicum shall be an integral part of this training programme to enable the students to integrate the knowledge acquired in the classroom with actual practice. Every student shall be required to put in 12 hours of field work, spread over two days a week, concurrently during two years academic programme, spread over four semesters. Students shall be required to submit field-work/practicum reports every week to the field supervisor. Student participation in fieldwork / practicum is compulsory.

A variety of learning opportunities shall be made available to the students during the field work/practicum (i) to develop their ability to observe and analyze social realities (ii) to appreciate individual's, group's or society's response to people's needs and problems (iii) to develop critical understanding of the application of legislation and social policy (iv) to develop the ability to recognize the need for newer programmes (v) to develop the capacity for self direction, growth and change through self awareness (vi) to enhance writing skills to document practice appropriately. To meet these objectives the following field work/practicum opportunities shall be provided:

• Observation visits:

Observation visits shall be arranged for providing an exposure to and understanding of the services provided in response to people's needs. The emphasis shall be laid on acquiring skills of systematic observation, developing a spirit of inquiry, appreciating the services provided, understanding the policy & its relevance and identifying the gaps in the service system.

• Individual /Group Conferences:

The structured experiences during the conferences shall provide the opportunity of learning by doing in a safe environment of the classroom. This classroom environment, wherein the students and facilitators meet to experience certain intervention skills, shall be the most non-threatening methods of learning especially for the beginners. Learning opportunity shall be conducted through a game/form, or other simulated experiences with a view to help the students to enhance their self awareness (own strengths & limitations) in relationship to professional role and to understand non-verbal messages-body language, empathy and like skills.

• Camps:

Camps in the slums /rural areas shall provide opportunities to experience living conditions- housing, water supply, sanitation and other amenities; in addition to the social, economic, educational and political life of the people. Students will develop understanding of the governmental and developmental services in the context of emerging social realities. This experience shall help the students in acquiring skills in planning, organizing, implementing the camp for conscious use of time, communication skills, team spirit, handling relationships, conflicts, differences of opinions, evaluation, sharing of resources, coping skills in problem situations, cooperation & coordination.

• Workshops:

Workshops shall be organized to help the students acquire specific skills for situations encountered during practice and acquire skills for intervention. These may be for problems, issues or concerns like work with alcoholics and their families, couples undergoing marital stress, elderly, adolescents, HIV/AIDS affected persons, disabled persons etc.

• Block Field Placement:

Soon after the completion of IV semester theory examination, block fieldwork shall be provided for enabling the students to integrate learning and generate newer learning to develop and enhance practice skills to become an independent worker. All students shall be required to work for six weeks continuously in specific agencies/organizations of their choice or as may be assigned. It is compulsory for each student to submit a certificate indicating satisfactory completion of block field placement from the agency/organization the student has worked with, to become eligible for obtaining the degree of Masters in Social Work.

ATTENDANCE

Regularity: Every student is expected to maintain 100 % attendance in the class as well as field work/ practicum. Absence, without prior permission, may entail disciplinary action.

Eligibility: Eligibility to appear for the examination of both theory and field work/practicum shall be as per Panjab University regulations. Normally minimum 75% of attendance in every semester is essential to make the candidate eligible for appearing in the semester examinations.

MODE OF EVALUATION

Scheme of Examination and Evaluation
