Message from YGen CEO

I am very pleased to finally bring to the students a very unique system which would enhance their employability quotient in the market and make them one of the best sought after individuals. I believe that every single student has the capabilities of going to college, if they choose. Everyone on this planet can become anything they desire and are willing to work for. Access to technology and developing on-line interactive curriculum, video conferencing, and real time dialogue will allow many more people from different regions and different time zones to interact together for learning and this is what we are trying to achieve through our CDC's.

“The great aim of education is not knowledge, but action”

We will help our students to become independent, self sustaining in their professional skills, practice and vision by providing them appropriate guidance, knowledge and industry relevant courses so that they can achieve their long term goals.

I wish my students all the very best.

DISTANCE EDUCATION

PHILOSOPHY AND INSTRUCTIONAL SYSTEM IN DISTANCE EDUCATION

Self Learning Materials: Distance Education simply means imparting education from distance. In this system of education the teacher and the candidates are physically separated. The salient feature of instruction in distance education includes the following :

Candidates are supplied with printed materials written in a self-learning mode. Course material is specially designed by a team of experts from industries, faculty from leading institutions and in-house faculty of the University. The curriculum designed is subject to strict scrutiny by the content experts and experienced professors before adoption by the University.

Whenever necessary video/audio CDs supplement printed material. They can be in the form of lectures, debates, discussions, colloquiums etc.

Academic Counselling: Counselling is an important activity in distance education. It is totally different from conventional classroom teaching. Counsellors answer the candidates' questions in these sessions besides clarifying their doubts help them overcome difficulties, which they may face while going through the text. These counselling sessions also give candidates an opportunity to interact with their peers.

Assignments: Assignments are an integral component of distance education. Assignments serve the purpose of evaluation of the candidate's comprehension. The local counsellors evaluate these assignments and also provide feedback on the candidate's performance. A copy of the evaluated assignment will be shown to the candidates by the co-ordinator as a part of learning activity.

Practice Session: Depending upon the subject, an optimal amount of practical training is also imparted to candidates in study centers.

Project Report: The candidates prepare a project report as a part of the curriculum requirement of Post Graduate and Under Graduate courses and submit the same during the respective final semesters for evaluation and assessment.

ACADEMIC SYSTEM

Support Services through Study Centers: Study centers are being set up all over the country to provide the candidates a platform to interact with counsellors, other candidates and for use of the library and technology based learning. Candidates would be getting personal attention at these centers in addition to the hands-on-training on computers at these centers

Program Delivery

A multi-form of Instruction has been adopted, comprising of:

Print material: Study material for all subjects which are supplied in the form of books. Study material will be supplied through CDs or online media wherever necessary

Counseling Sessions: Will be held at Study centers, to suit the convenience of the candidates.

Practical Sessions: Will also be held at the Study centers

Assignments: For assessment, evaluation and for feed-back of the students on comprehension of study material.

Project work: To enable the candidate to gain an insight to independent working on a practical project.

Credit System: The University follows the 'Credit System' for all its programmes, Each credit entails approximately 30 hours of study comprising of all activities, Thus, a 3-credit course involves 90 study hours, This helps the candidates to understand the academic efforts he/she has to put in suitably to complete the course.

The Grade System: For each semester, Grade System as given in the table below is adopted for declaration of results.

Class Awarded	Grade Awarded	Qualitative Level	Marks Range
Distinction	A	Excellent	80% and above
I Class	B	Very Good	60% to 79.9%
II Class	C	Good	50% to 59.9%
Pass	D	Satisfactory	40% to 49.9%
Fail	E	Failed	Below 40%

In addition to Grade System, marks obtained in each paper shall also be announced, For the award of class for the Bachelor's degree courses, the cumulative performance of the candidates in the last 4-semesters (3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th) will be considered, For the award of class for the Master degree courses, the cumulative performance of the candidates in 2-semesters will be considered

Instructional System: The methodology of instruction in this Open University is different from that of the conventional Universities. The Open University system is more learner-oriented, so much so, the candidate has to be invariably an active participant in the teaching-learning process. The instructions are imparted through distance as well as face-to-face mode.

Technology @ YGen

There has been substantial evidence around the world that technology has become one of the most important and vital components to education and in recent past is playing a vital role in distance education. In fact, it is safe to say that modern distance education would be incomplete without access to technology that can deliver information via the Internet to students in multiple locations. In other words the IT will take away the “distance” from distance education.

The Student's Perspective (without the use of technology in education)

In the absence of technology the students are facing the following problems:

They are missing vital information of new courses and changes in industry

They do not know what exactly to learn

They go to classes that get cancelled without any notification and most time get mediocre faculty to teach them

All of these decrease the motivation level and interest in education of the students.

The Teacher's Perspective (without the use of technology in education):

In the absence of technology the teachers are facing the following problems:

They do not know what students are doing

They have difficulty in spreading information

They find difficult in reaching students

A majority of teachers themselves are either not updated or are under-qualified and due to lack of information & knowledge they do not benefit from new advances and continue to teach outdated material

They have often complains of high work load

Applications designed to facilitate distance learning are available to student and teacher at YGen:

These programs integrate material and organize it so it can be accessed from computers

Students can record lessons and access presentations, slides and notes at their convenience

Security protocols allow only registered students to access content

Assessment programs provide secure testing environments with automated grading and instant feedback.

Y-Axis (Collaborative Learning Management System)

Y-Axis enables students to express themselves differently than they have ever before. Students are no longer limited to using a piece of paper and a pencil or pen, but instead have a unique online environment in which they can express what information they have been able to gather, internalize data and then integrate it into their assignments.

Students have access to up-to-the-minute, current information, and this information is shared with their peers and faculty. This leads to a dramatic change in the learning experience. Teachers, who used to be the subject matter experts, will transfer more of the learning process and responsibility to students.

We can see how a student can help himself and the society in promoting Y-Axis in education. Presently, we see the old face of the student i.e., as a consumer mugging up outdated text books. And the new face looks very promising in which the student plays the role of a:

- a) Creator
- b) Contributor
- c) Communicator
- d) Collaborator
- e) Coordinator

This tool is web based and is available for all registered CDC students and teachers.

Salient features of this tool are:

Allows teachers and students to comment and discuss sections of text books

Link supplementary material for further study

Share lectures, assignments, exercises, tests and so on

Allows development of training material for helping teachers and administrators update and enhance their skills

A system where every teacher is able to access and use teaching aids developed anywhere and by anyone
